"Who's Who in the Pacific Southwest"

PREFACE

This work is submitted to the public with confidence in its usefulness and value, and without a misgiving as to its hearty reception. Preparing and editing the volume have required several months of painstaking labor by a large force of experts, and the publishers do not hesitate to say that they are gratified with the result, since this publication stands without any counterpart in West Coast literature.

The book is modeled after the standard of all works of this character, "WHO'S WHO," published in England. All eulogistic matter has been omitted; only a bare statement of facts has been made, in each case, in conformity with "WHO'S WHO" style. No other style is permissible in a work in which all sketches are prepared from data furnished by the subjects themselves. In conforming strictly to this idea the publishers feel that they have achieved a work of character and dignity.

Every art, profession and industry is represented in the brief life-sketches of their exponents; and in these pages will be found more complete data respecting a greater number of residents of the Pacific Southwest than ever was compiled before.

The purpose has been to gather these little life histories of people who have contributed to the making of the great Pacific Southwest into a volume accessible to all. It contains approximately 4,000 sketches of representative people in every reputable walk of life, and will be of recognized value to every one who keeps abreast of the times and is interested in what those with whom he deals have done and are doing.

This work is entirely different from the ordinary biographical publication, inasmuch as no space has been sold. All sketches are unpaid for and printed with the sole object of giving the public a representative work, in which the sale of space was not the object, on the same plan as encyclopedias and other standard works of reference.

It is obvious that such a book, to be of value to the diversified interests to which it appeals, must be as accurate as conscientious work can make it. Absolute reliability has been the great aim of the publication, and the long service of the publishers to the public is its best guarantee.

OTIS, Gen. Harrison Gray. Citizen, soldier, journalist, editor of The Los Angeles Times. He was a farmer's son, a printer's apprentice, a roller-boy and a "journeyman." Possessed of the wanderlust when he was a young fellow, at 22 he married Miss Eliza A. Wetherby, in 1859, and became a family man while yet only little more than a boy in age. His school education was limited. The most valuable part of it was acquired in printing offices. Returning to Los Angeles after the close of the war in the Philippines, where he served as a brigade commander, he resumed his duties as president and general manager of The Times-Mirror Company and editor of the Los Angeles Times. He is still on deck. He is an Old Guard Republican and a steady opponent of political insurgency. His name and his journal are recognized and distinguished throughout the United States as the names of the "foremost defenders of the faith" in the sacred cause of freedom in the industries. In the long period of his residence in Los Angeles—nearly a third of a century—Gen. Otis has personally applied himself, almost without interruption, to his newspaper tasks; yet in his capacity as a developer of the country, associated with others, he has engaged in outside activities to no small extent. He has put money into land and cattle in the San Fernando Valley, in the delta of the Colorado River on both sides of the International Boundary line, and in the famous Tejon Ranchos lying northwestwardly from Los Angeles. He is a member of the American Academy of Sciences, Associated Press, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Grand Army of the Republic, Military Order of the Loyal Legion, Society of the Army of the Potomac, Military Order of Foreign Wars, United Spanish War Veterans, National Society of the Army of the Philippines, Veteran Army of the Philippines, and Order of Sons of the American Revolution. His city home is "The Bivouac," Westlake; and he supports, besides, a picturesque country place called "The Outpost" in the foothills of Hollywood. Mrs. Otis died in November, 1904, leaving behind her a beautiful, tender and fragrant memory, cherished by her husband, family and lifelong friends. She made her mark in the journalistic and literary world, creating a living work in poetry and prose, "California, Where Sets the Sun."
